In Short....

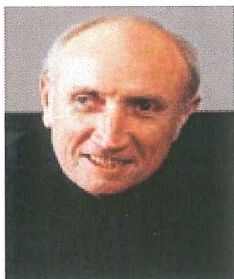

Social Networking: Beyond the Screen

Each fall and spring, the Scott College of Business and the Meis Student Development Center host an Executive Dining Experience that brings top-level executives from a variety of industries together with business students. It's an opportunity for students to network, polish their skills and discuss trending business topics with those on the cutting edge.

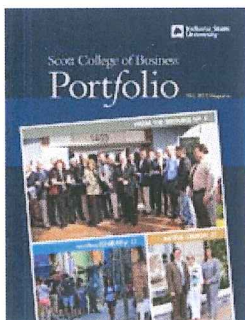

Fall events are in Terre Haute, while spring events are in Indianapolis. Thanks to generous support from Denny Sponsel of RJE Business Interiors, these events have been a huge success for over four years. For more information or to support a Scott College of Business initiative, call the Meis Center (812) 237-4580 or the dean's office at (812) 237-2000.

How should risks be regulated?

"Insurance Contracts and Derivatives that Substitute for them: How and Where Should Their Systemic and and Nonperformance Risks be Regulated?" by Networks Financial Institute Senior Fellow, Edward J. Kane is now available from NFI's Policy Briefs page. The paper explores state and federal regulation of insurance. Get more information at: www.indstate.edu/business/NFI.
