Alumna educator recognized

When 1998 Indiana State business education alumna Jen Petersen Schulz accepted the Teacher of the Year award at Ben Davis High School in Indianapolis, she wasn't surprised to see her former advisor among those sharing in her achievement.

"You can only get the award one-time so it was fitting for Dr. (Mary Ellen) Adams to be there, since she's been there for every other award I've received," said Schulz.

Having served for four years as Schulz' advisor, Mary Ellen Adams, professor emerita in the Scott College of Business, has continued to stay in touch and aware of her accomplishments. Those accomplishments are many, and include the Indiana State GOLD (Graduate of the Last Decade) Award, the National Business Education Association Award of Merit and the North Central Business Education Association Distinguished Service Award as Emerging Professional of the Year. Schulz also became an inaugural member of the College's Young Professionals Board in 2008.

Business alumna named president of Ivy Tech Terre Haute Campus

Lee Anne Crooks, who has been with Ivy Tech since 1991, was recently selected as president of the Terre Haute Ivy Tech campus. She earned a bachelor's in Business Education and a master's in Human Resource Development from Indiana State and is current president of the Wabash Valley Human Resources Association.
